Situated at Berlou, between Saint Chinian and Saint Pons de Thomières, in the heart of the Rieu Valley, the 'Maison du Cambrien' (or paleontologic museum) is the outcome of a childhood passion. More than 350 fossils are on show, including fine examples of trilobites from the black mountains, found in its Berlou region;

This heritage composed of fossils dating as far back as 600 million years was uncovered in local shale ground.
